Blunting Truffles.

haly is the home of the truffle hueter and the truffle dog. Most people have seen, if not tasted, a traffle. In thape it is more or less scherical, sometimes studded over with warty protuberances, sometimes smooth. warry protuberances, sometimes smooth, Itisize varies greatly. In England it is selden greater than a large hen's egg or a maderate sized apple, but on the Continent it is often found much larger. In color also it is variable. The commonest kind is the white, which has a coarse flavor and is but privileges and casements to the same belonging or in anywise appertaining.

GEO. A. MUSHBACH, white, which has a coarse flavor and is but little esteemed. This is probably the sort with which the ancients were acquainted.

A red or purple variety is also found, but it is rather rare. The black is the best known, and is generally considered to have the most delicate flavor.

The geographical distribution of the truffle is wide. It extends over most of Europe, and parts of Asia, and even as far as Japan and the East Indies. In England it is found in most of the Southern and midland counties, and probably could be procured all over the kingdom, but the regular truffic hunting is carried on only in Hampshire, Wittshire and Kent. In some parts of Somersetshire another fungus of an entirely different spe-cies, and only resembling the troffle in being subterraneous, is sold under the name of "Bath truffle,"

Since its growth is entirely subtertaneous, without any shoots or other signs of its pre-sence above ground, the hunters resort to a peculiar method to obtain it. Some animals, notably the dog and the pig, which possess a delicate sense of smell, have also a strong liking for the truffle, which is turned to ac-

In England and in some parts of France and Italy, dogs are employed in the scarch, a small white woolly dog being specially trained for the purpose. The English dogs are inferior in skill to those used in Italy, where they are often trained so well that he hunter can send his animals out, even at night, without troubling to follow them, and yet be sure they will bring back all they find without tasting them. But in England a close watch has to be kept on the dogs, or they will devour the dainty as soon as it has been unearthed.

An Italian writer, Vittadini, tells of seme dogs in his possession which he had trained to such perfection that if he wanted a supply of any particular variety he had only to give them one to smell, and they would search for that kind only. As a rule the dogs hunt in couples. Sometimes the hunter is furnished with a steut ash stick, tipped at one extremity with iron to the depth of about three inches. This is Perigord pig is thought to be the most expert. This animal also is susceptible of a certain amount of training. "As soon as the pig has disinterred the truflle," says Figure 7: "it remains for a few moments motionless like a pointer; but, if it is kept waiting too long, its gluttony frequently gets the better of its training." According to the same authority a trufile pig, well taught, is worth about two hundred france. Leisure Hours

A Farmer Fieeced.

"Good morning, Mr. Moore. Can you tell me where I can buy a thoroughbred Durham buil?" was the way a bunco man approached William V. Moore, a well-to do farmer, residing near Cherry Hill, on one of the principal streets of Eikton, Md., on Thursday morning last, during the fair. After a short conversation about Durham and other thoroughbred stock, bunco man No. 2 appeared. He wanted to buy a farm, with which Mr. Moore, who is somewhat advanced in years, probably upwards of seventy, offered to furnish him. The elder bunco man, who represented himself as the uncle of the younger one, said the other's father had made a fortune selling the tea, and they wished Mr. Moore to take the agency for the sale of it in that county, and anade him believe there was millions Just then the younger man called the other's attention to the fact that Mr. Moore other's attention to the fact that Mr. Moore had drawn a prize of five dollars with the tea he had purchased, which was tendered to him, but before he had time to commissioners, will sell at public sale, at the front commissioners, will sell at public sale, at the front put it in his pocket, the fellow said he had made a mistake and that Mr. Moore was entitled to ten dollars, which they gave him. THE GOLD MINING COMPANY (location, Music Mountains, A. T.,) is as sound a mining enterprise as was ever placed on the market, and its possibilities have never been exceeded. Every share should double in value within a year, and they may quadruple, as they are based on property that would ordinarily have been capitalized ten (10) times as great on account of its known richness and promise.

The shares are made small so that any one can invest. Subscriptions for five shares are as welcome as those for hundreds.

Every dollar of earnings will go to the stockholders in dividends, as there is nothing else that they can be used for.

A Wisewell mill, capacity 20 tons per day, with powerful machinery, has been purchased and will be on the ground ready for erection at the mine within the next thirty days.

The solid basis upon which the company is founded and the practical proofs of the richness of the mine have already secured the confidence of the public, and the stock has steadily advanced in selling value Within the last few days bona fide sales have been made AT PAR.
